Keep the evidence.

A short introduction to RemitGuard for independent outpatient practices.

Helpful AI. Human decisions. Traceable numbers.

Review supported fixed-fee payer contracts, compare EDI 835 remittances, and organize evidence for follow-up. Suitable workflows can include primary care, physical therapy, rehabilitation and other specialty offices. Dental and ENT teams can discuss their specific contract and remittance formats with us.

One fictional example

Contract comparison	Amount
Expected allowance: 99214 + modifier 25	$145.00
Payer-reported allowance	$130.00
Actual payer payment	$110.00
Patient responsibility	$20.00
Potential allowance difference	$15.00

The $15 difference is a review flag, not confirmed debt or recovered money. Patient responsibility explains part of the allowance split; it is not deducted from the expected allowance again.

Review: compare proposed contract rates and conditions with their source.
Compare: inspect matches, potential differences and missing information.
Follow up: open a case, inspect the evidence packet and record follow-up. Your team decides what to submit.

Entirely fictional demonstration. No patient records or account are needed to watch. These examples are not for payer submission or clinical use.

Start with a conversation.

A remote demo works just as well as an office visit.

Join a screen-share call with your practice administrator or billing lead. We demonstrate a prepared fictional workspace and discuss how it compares with your current process. No installation or upload is required to watch.

Time	What we cover
3 minutes	Your current payment-review process and recurring pain points.
12 minutes	One contract, one remittance and a potential difference, with source evidence and follow-up.
5 minutes	Questions, supported workflows and whether a limited pilot fits.

What the demonstration proves

You can see how a supported calculation is explained and traced to a reviewed contract. Matching lines remain matches; an unknown rate or missing payer allowance stays unresolved. The demonstration does not establish support for every payer contract, guarantee reimbursement, or test actual payer submission.

If a pilot is a fit

We agree on the workflow, participating practice, dates, any fees, and data scope before participation. Start with fictional data. Any use of practice records follows the applicable agreements and access controls.
